Remembrance

At the 11th hour on the 11th day of the 11th month this year people all across this land will become silent for just two minutes. The tradition actually began in 1919 in response to a proclamation issued by King George V. The proclamation included the words, "All locomotion should cease, so that, in perfect stillness, the thoughts of everyone may be concentrated on reverent remembrance of the glorious dead." Just one year earlier at 4:20 in the morning the last group of soldiers went, "Over the top". Forty minutes later at 5 o'clock the Armistice was signed in a railway carriage in the Forest of Compiègne, France. It took until 11 o'clock for the guns all over Europe to cease firing and the Great War was over. But the sad fact is that in the time between those soldiers going over the top and the guns stopping 10,944 soldiers were injured and 2,738 died on the Western Front. Numbers like these are somehow too large for us to comprehend, but they bring home to us the true horror of war. Between the First and Second World War the remembrance event took place on the actual date, but the official Remembrance from that time now takes place on the nearest Sunday to the 11th November. In more recent years many people have reverted to the earlier pattern.

Wilfred Owen was a soldier and a poet who died just one week before the end of the war. In a letter to his mother he wrote, "I came out to help these boys - directly by leading them, indirectly by watching their sufferings that I may speak of them as well as a pleader can. I have done the first." The fact is that he did the second as well because his poems have spoken down the years asking people to recognise the sheer horror of war. The Preface to "The Poems of Wilfred Owen" includes the words, "This book is not about heroes. English poetry is not yet fit to speak of them. Nor is it about deeds, or lands, nor anything about glory, might, majesty, dominion or power, except War. My subject is war and the pity of War. The poetry is in the pity. All a poet can do today is warn. That is why the true poets must be truthful."

I am grateful that my parents encouraged me to attend a Remembrance Service each year. I am not sure that I fully understood why I was there in the early years, but I have grown up with an awareness of my indebtedness to those who gave their lives to sustain our communities and our world. I have also lived with the knowledge that war is still with us and this saddens me. I also recognise that each of us needs to live at peace with others. The Bible encourages us to do this and if we took these words of Jesus seriously I believe that it would make a great difference to our world, "This is my commandment, that you love one another as I have loved you. No one has greater love than this, to lay down one's life for one's friends." Some of these words are recorded on the tomb in Westminster Abbey of the Unknown Soldier and can be seen amongst the poppies.

I encourage you to attend a Remembrance event this year and in the Silence — Remember them.

Harvest Festival

We would like to thank the Weybridge Garden Centre, Waitrose, Sainsburys, Aldi and members of the congregation for their generous contributions of cash and produce which enabled us to decorate the Church for the Harvest Festival.

Informal All-age service

Why not consider coming to our informal worship services at 11.15am on the last Sunday of each month? These are short (usually little more than half an hour). There's a short child-friendly talk, and children can play percussion instruments during the singing. Refreshments are available from about 10.45am. The next one will be on Sunday 25th November and will take the form of a Christingle service. It will, as usual, be followed by a bring and share lunch.

First Sunday of the month

The 9.30am service on the first Sunday of each month aims to bring a Communion service to those who will feel more comfortable at a less formal service than our usual Sunday mornings. It is based on a Methodist service led by Andrew Reed.

Looking for a new challenge ...

a hospital chaplain at St Peter's Hospital in Chertsey.

If you have ever spent time in hospital you will know how difficult it can be to be in an unfamiliar environment with possible uncertainties. We offer you the opportunity to make a difference to those finding themselves in this situation. As a Chaplaincy Volunteer you will be provided with both initial and ongoing training, and supervision while you undertake this key role of visiting patients. You will be joining a dedicated team making a positive difference in the lives of many individuals in their time of need.

For an informal conversation and further information, please contact: The Revd Laurence Gamlen CA, Lead Chaplain, Ashford and St Peter's NHS Trust, 01932 872534 or 07939
